

Government Information and support on the UKCA transition, 1 January 2023 deadline

What is the UKCA marking?

The UKCA (UK Conformity Assessed) marking is the new UK product marking covering most goods currently subject to the EU's CE marking. Most manufactured goods will need to use the UKCA marking when placed on the market in Great Britain on or after 1 January 2023.

The requirements for the UKCA marking generally mirror those that currently exist for the CE marking. If the CE marking goes on the product or packaging currently, then so can the UKCA marking

You can place the UKCA and CE marking on the same product if it is destined for both markets so long as the product meets the relevant regulatory requirements for both markets.

What applies in Northern Ireland?

There are different rules for placing goods on the market in Northern Ireland, where a CE or CE plus UKNI marking should be used. This is detailed in the links and webinars below, including a specific webinar on placing goods on the market in Northern Ireland and the rules that apply.

Webinar programme on the New UK Regulatory Regime: open for registration

The Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy is running a series of Webinars on the new UK regulatory regime for goods for businesses.

Further guidance is available for businesses

- Guidance on using the UKCA marking
- Guidance on using the UKNI marking
- Guidance on placing goods on the market in Great Britain
- Guidance on placing goods on the market in Northern Ireland
- A-Z of industry guidance to understand requirements for product types.